CLAUDIA HECHT DEBUT SHOW IN LONDON AT MADDOX GALLERY LAUNCH & MORE

As part of her European moves, artist Claudia Hecht had the central pieces at the launch of Maddox Gallery's new 3750 square foot space in 9 Maddox Street. Artists, collectors and a very selected crowd gathered in London Mayfair last December for the opening of the show, which ran until the end of January.

The private view, showcased an exciting group of artists on the gallery roster, and was hosted by Tamara Ecclestone Rutland with husband Jay Rutland, longstanding clients of the gallery's Director and Curator James Nicholls. Of the ten artists showcased in the inaugural exhibition, Hecht was the only woman and the only Latin-American among the selected group of international artists exhibited. This show was also an important complement to the exhilarating end-of-year exhibitions programme marking the closure of the Mexico-United Kingdom dual agenda of 2015.

Set across the four newly renovated floors, the opening exhibition titled 'Art Fusion' was a dynamic and vibrant exhibition bringing artworks from diverse mediums including sculpture, painting, photography and installations. Among other artists included were Bradley Theodore, Retna, Tyler Shields, Nick Veasy, Tony Kelly, Yves Hayat and Robi Walters, to name a few.

Maddox Gallery owner James Nicholls commented "Maddox Gallery is proud to be working with some of the most exciting names on the international art scene and is committed to showcasing these talented individuals in a welcoming and accessible environment."

During her stay in London Claudia gave several private tours arranged for special guests and the media; among the guests were His Excellency Diego Gomez Pickering, Mexican Ambassador to the UK, and xx Basel.

After the success of this show the artist is preparing fort exhibitions in Germany, also as part of the dual year with Mexico; as same as Copenhagen, Monaco and Colombia during 2016-17. Watch this space for further details.

These days Bradley's work is signaturred by his use of the skeleton as the inner life force of the subject. As he explains: "There is no deeper delving into your psyche than the very structure of your body" The artist invites people into his art studio to immerse themselves in the creative process by conducting live paintings in cities as New York, Los Angeles, Oslo, Paris, and Tokyo and now we are delighted that he is coming to us here at the Maddox Gallery in Mayfair.
